ANNUAL REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

TO THE GREENFIELD SCHOOL BOARD:

The usual survey, the report of individual pupil achievements, and the indices of costs, have been presented to you. The percent of gain in actual pupil achievement has been gratifying, and a tribute to your teaching staff.

The improvements within the building have been numerous. During the past year your staff has encouraged the children in many worthwhile activities. These have stimulated pupil interest, motivated the studies in school, and brought about a definite improvement in the alertness of all the children.

It is indicative of your understanding of childhood, and proper educational technique, that the Greenfield Schools are maintained with intelligent understanding of the great present need for schools which develop children mentally, rather than stuff them with facts which are soon forgotten, and of little practical value in the first place.

Training in how to think is of far more importance than insistence on memory drill. The fact that the achievement scores move rapidly ahead when children learn to think rather than try to remember, should surprise no one.

Child training requires great sympathy with child aspirations, and wide understanding of how to fit education to a child, rather than squeezing him into a mold such as perhaps was of value in past generations.

Children of Greenfield, in the year 1933, need education based on their probable requirements and needs for the future; not an attempt to affix to them the ideas of the past.

Training of the sort which insists on personal integrity, develops discovered abilities and uses them, and which realizes that whatever gain we have made in intelligence is due to honest, hard labor, is ideal for the individual and of first importance to the state.

The school, as now organized, is making the children secure their education in a natural, effective manner. The Board may desire to develop the opportunities for education which lie in extensions of nature study, of craftsmanship, and the ever increasing wealth of material offered to the schools through the use of the radio.

You are seeing to it that the pupils in your schools are receiving an education, along the lines of which children can most rapidly move to better use of their talents, and with better understanding of their environment. The organization of the school, the active interest of the children, and your strong support of sound educational practice, is not alone making possible your steady decrease in costs, but promises faithfully the making of better citizens-to-be than old, formal education could hope to develop.

(Signed) LAWTON CHASE

Superintendent of Schools
